“Procurement will rethink everything from technology and resource allocation to talent and skill sets.”

- Marcell Vollmer, Chief Digital Officer, SAP Ariba

EVENT OVERVIEW

Modern procurement marked by the advent of Industrial 4.0 robust technology puts focus on data-driven acquisition process, equipping companies and organizations across the supply chain with connected cyber functionality. In a recent survey by The Hackett Group, 84% of respondents said digital transformation would fundamentally change the way procurement services are delivered over the next 3 to 5 years. Coupled with enhanced connectivity through Cloud and IoT, digital transformation to procurement process precipitated the rise for new technology building blocks like Blockchain and AI.

The shift from traditional to digital revolves around tactical planning in gaining the most cost-effective procurement with significant lead-time. The application of 4.0 groundbreaking technology driven by the need to execute procurement task based on vital insights are made possible with comprehensive data extraction and pattern recognition software, reflecting the global procurement software market that are expected to rake in revenue of about $5.14 billion in 2017. Evidently, digitization serves as a key driver in burnishing procurement as an invaluable pillar in the supply chain.

In digitizing the integral process of acquisition through 4.0 technologies, company and practitioner will stand to gain higher standings in the market value chain. Procurement 4.0 by Trueventus is a gathering for the finest minds in procurement to engage and network with fellow aspirers of the industry.
